

To: Cara Steiner-Riley/R10/USEPA/US@EPA;Phil North/R10/USEPA/US@EPA[]; hil North/R10/USEPA/US@EPA[]
Cc: "Richard King" [Ex. 6 - Personal Privacy]
From: "jeff parker"
Sent: Sat 6/12/2010 1:30:42 AM
Subject: FW:
Zech at Summit.JPG
Summit & Horn.JPG

Cara and Phil,

On the belief that a picture is worth a thousand words, here are two photos of Ekwok's Tribal Administrator, Rickard King, his 5-year old son, Zechariah King, and the lay of some of the land about which we are all writing, as explained below, by Mr. King. His photos put human faces and topographical character upon all our words.

I think you'll grin at the second photo. I did.

JP

-----Original Message-----

From: Richard King [mailto: [Ex. 6 - Personal Privacy]]
Sent: Friday, June 11, 2010 8:34 AM
To: gparker@alaska.net
Subject: Fw:

geff am sending you a couple photos of the swan and koktuli. we were up there two weeks ago. I sent a follow up to some freinds. This is just a foward from that sent email from me.

I bet Zech is the only five year old on earth that has ever climbed from the river to the top of that mountain. Just thought I would send a folllow up, was to many pictures last time. Zech at Summit picture you can see the koktuli on the right side of the picture, you can see the route we took to the mountain. Break!! if you look at the horn Zech is holding the swan river is under his left elbow, the koktuli is on the right side of the picture by that little hill. The cabins are on the other side of that little hill, just imagine those two rivers meeting and there is the cabins. If you look at zechs head that area above and around his head is where they want to put the pebble mine,